Specifications for Aakash 4 to be finalised soon

NEW DELHI, June 2:

The Government is likely to finalise soon the specifications for the fourth version of low-cost tablet PC Aakash.

"...The draft of the specifications has been prepared, formally it has to be placed before a committee... We are waiting for a suitable date to do that," Department of Electronics and IT (DEITy) Secretary J Satyanarayana told.

He added that the specifications have been designed keeping in mind the current technological developments and also how to keep the cost under check.

"We should not add so many features so that the cost will go beyond," he said.

The Aakash project was Telecom Minister Kapil Sibal's brainchild when he was the HRD Minister.

The idea was to provide low-cost computing device at subsidised rate to students so that they can access Internet for educational purposes.

Canadian company DataWind had bagged a contract to supply one lakh tablets. However, the project hit rough weather when IIT-Rajasthan, the nodal agency for the project, rejected the tablet for not meeting performance criteria and the project had to be shifted to IIT-Bombay.

The first version of Aakash was rolled out in October 2011. The second version was launched last year.

"Our interest is to finalise the technical specifications at this stage and notify these specifications...Promote domestic manufacturers of such tablets so that electronics manufacturing is given a priority under the electronics policy," Satyanarayana said.

Asked if some private players have shown interest to set up manufacturing facility in the country for Aakash, he added: "Not yet...But once we notify the specifications probably more proposals will come." (PTI)

Accompanying key accused doesn't prove common motive: HC

NEW DELHI, June 2:

Merely accompanying the main accused during an offence does not establish that the co-accused shares common criminal intention, the Delhi High Court has said.

"It is necessary that each co-perpetrator should have the necessary intent to participate or otherwise have requisite awareness or knowledge that the offence is likely in view of the common design.

"It also follows from the above that merely accompanying the principal accused does not establish common intention," a bench of justices Sanjiv Khanna and Ved Prakash Vaish said.

The observations came in a verdict by which the conviction and sentence of life imprisonment of a man for killing and attempting to murder (under section 302 and section 307 of the IPC) two policemen respectively was set aside.

The court rather convicted Mohd Saleem under mild penal section 304A (rash and negligent driving) of the IPC and awarded two years jail term.

The case pertained to an incident in which Naresh, a head constable and one of his colleagues ASI Jagpal being hit during their attempt to catch a truck, carrying illegal slaughtered beef, on the intervening night of May 14-15, 2008 here.

While Naresh succumbed to injuries, the ASI got injured in the incident and later, Mohd Saleem, who was sitting in the truck alongside driver Mohd Azim, was convicted for various offences including that of murder and attempt to murder.

The driver, being a juvenile, was tried by the Juvenile Justice Board and co-accused Saleem was held guilty for sharing common intention with the driver by ramming the truck into the police van to evade the arrest and interception of the vehicle.

"The physical presence of Mohd Saleem in the truck does show that he had shared common intention under Section 34 IPC to commit murder or an offence under Section 304 (culpable homicide not amounting to murder) IPC," the court said.

It, however, upheld Saleem's conviction under the Delhi Agricultural Cattle Preservation Act for carrying beef. He was also held guilty for damaging the police van.

"Appellant Mohd. Saleem, as per the prosecution version, was sitting in the truck, which was being driven by a third person, Mohd Azim. Saleem and the driver were carrying cow meat and to this extent they had common intention.

"They also had common intention to evade detection and deliberately had not stopped and evaded inspection when they were directed to stop by the police officers of PCR van...

"There is, therefore, ample evidence and material to show that Mohd Saleem shared common intention as far as offence under Section 304A IPC is concerned, but not beyond that," the court said. (PTI)

Taxmen to file court cases against bankers, depositors

NEW DELHI, June 2:

The Income Tax department will file court cases for "wilful evasion of taxes" against depositors and those bank authorities who have been found guilty in an RBI probe following allegations of money laundering in a sting operation conducted by an online portal.

The department will prosecute individuals and banking authorities under 276C of the Income Tax Act which deals with the offence of 'wilful attempt to evade tax' and the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) has issued directions to all its chief commissioners in the country to speed up investigation in their respective jurisdictions with regard to this expose.

The department's action, according to top sources, is based on a RBI report which was obtained in the case of three banks which had featured in the first edition of the online portal's expose.

The RBI report explicitly mentions that in a number of cases neither PAN nor Form-60 was obtained by the banks and in another set of cases "dummy" PAN card numbers were quoted for facilitation of huge cash and deposits.

A Form-60 is a declaration that has to be filed by a person who does not have a Permanent Account Number (PAN).

The department, after going through this RBI report, recently initiated the action of summoning the evidence from banks (under section 131 of IT Act) and various tax collection ranges of the department will then launch prosecution in the competent courts, sources said.

The department has recently issued notices, summoning for documents, to three private banks—Axis, ICICI and HDFC— in this regard and it is now in the process of initiating similar action against 23 other public and private sector banks and insurance companies which figured in the later editions of online news portal Cobrapost.

The department has also begun action in those cases where Form-60 was quoted despite possessing a PAN, which is seen by investigators as an attempt to evade the tax scanner.

The final case papers will be prepared and sent for prosecution after collecting data and evidence from the RBI reports, documents submitted by the banks and internal enquiry reports which were conducted by the individual banks, they said.

Following the exposes by Cobrapost in March, RBI had initiated an investigation into the working of banks.

The investigation by RBI reportedly showed some bankers giving suggestions to customers on ways to bypass regulatory norms and the sting operation alleged violation of money laundering and tax laws in this process. (PTI)

India developing guide bombs for fighters

NEW DELHI, June 2:

By the end of next year, Indian fighter planes could be equipped with indigenously-developed 'glide bombs', which will be guided to their targets for precision attacks.

The first-of-its-kind bomb in the country, being developed by the DRDO, will boost India's strike capabilities as targets can be hit even beyond the range of a fighter aircraft.

The DRDO is working on developing glide capabilities on the existing bombs of various payloads including 100 kgs, 250 kgs and 500 kgs.

"We are developing glide bombs which can be directed towards their intended targets using guidance mechanisms after being dropped from aircraft of the IAF," outgoing DRDO chief V K Saraswat told in an interview.

"Such a capability will allow the IAF pilots to drop the bombs at their intended targets from stand-off distances as the glide capabilities will help in enhancing the range of the bombs," he said.

The DRDO has already carried out two trials of such bombs successfully and plans to hold more trials this year for proving the capabilities of the ammunition.

"By the end of the next year, we want to complete all the development trials of the glide bombs before offering it to the IAF," he said.

The outgoing DRDO chief said the organisation is also in the process of developing an anti-radiation missile, which will multiply the strike capabilities of the armed forces by destroying the enemy's advance warning system.

Such missiles can be mounted on Sukhoi fighter planes Su-30 MKI.

These missile can detect a radar by tracking its electromagnetic radiation and pulses generated and these would be independent of the radar wavelength and be able to destroy it.

Such missiles, currently in use of some major powers like the US, can detect and attack a radar antenna or transmitter with minimal aircrew input.

The proportional guidance system that homes in on enemy radar emissions has a fixed antenna and seeker head in the missile's nose.

The ARMs are used by the US Air Force and they move at the speed of over Mach 2, propelled by a smokeless and solid-propellant rocket motor.

The US Air Force introduced High Speed Anti-Radiation Missiles (HARM) on the F-4G Wild Weasel and later on specialised F-16s equipped with the HARM Targeting System (HTS).

Listing the successful test-firing of the over 5,000 km range Agni-5 missile as the "crowning glory" of his tenure as DRDO chief, Saraswat said more lethal versions of the missile would be developed.

He said the DRDO was working on producing a variant of the missile with Multiple Independently Targeted Re-entry Vehicle (MIRV) warheads.This MIRV capability would make the missile capable of carrying multiple warheads to destroy several targets in one go.

Terming it as a "force multiplier", he said, "I will be able to do force multiplication with this... Where I was using four missiles, I may use only one missile."

He said a few more tests of the missile would be done before it is ready for induction into the armed forces.

On the joint venture programmes to develop Medium-range Surface to Air Missile (MR-SAM) and Long-range SAM (LR-SAM) with Israel, he said the programme has been delayed by two years due to some technological problems.

India and Israel have formed a joint venture under which the IAF and the Navy would get these missile systems. (PTI)

Kejriwal to contest against Sheila Dikshit in Delhi polls

NEW DELHI, June 2:

Arvind Kejriwal today set the ball rolling for a direct electoral fight with Sheila Dikshit in the coming Delhi Assembly elections here choosing to contest from the constituency where the Delhi Chief Minister will file nomination.

At a convention of Aam Aadmi Party workers to decide from where he will contest in the November elections, Kejriwal also chose to attack BJP, saying the party fielded weak candidates against Dikshit in the previous polls and challenged Vijay Goel to contest against him and Dikshit.

He said he wished to contest from New Delhi constituency and take on Dikshit directly in the electoral contest.

"If she decides to avoid such a contest in New Delhi constituency out of fear and move to another, I will also move to the seat from where she is contesting," he said after the workers suggested that he fight against the Chief Minister.

However, the final ratification of Kejriwal's candidature will come after a process, which includes collecting 100 signatures from people in constituency and interviews with screening committee and Political Affairs Committee of AAP.

In 1998, Dikshit defeated BJP candidate Kirti Azad in Gole Market seat by a margin of 5,667 votes after garnering 24,881 votes and five years later, she defeated Poonam Azad by 12,935 votes after polling 25,156.

After delimitation exercise, Gole Market seat became defunct and she moved to New Delhi seat which has most localities in the previous seat. Dikshit has won from the seat defeating BJP's Vijay Jolly by 13,982 votes after polling 39,778 votes. (PTI)

Railways to pay over Rs 50K for 2 yr delay in processing refund

NEW DELHI, June 2:

Pulling up Indian Railways for taking over two years to process a passenger's refund request and then "illegally" rejecting it, a consumer forum here has directed it to pay a compensation of Rs 50,000 to the complainant.

The New Delhi District Consumer Disputes Redressal Forum held Indian Railway Catering and Tourism Corporation (IRCTC) directly responsible for the delay as the refund request for cancelled ticket was to be forwarded to the railways zone concerned by IRCTC.

"We hold all the opposite parties (chairman of Railway Board, general manager of Northern Railways, chief commercial manager of South East Railways and IRCTC) guilty of deficiency by taking unduly long time in processing the refund claim of complainant and then rejecting it illegally.

"The opposite party (IRCTC) has contributed directly to the delay and harassment and inconvenience to complainant and his family," a bench presided by C K Chaturvedi said and directed the parties to jointly and severally pay Rs 25,000 as compensation to Delhi resident Pulastya Pramachala along with Rs 25,000 as cost of litigation.

The forum asked the chairman of Railway Board to examine the rules and regulations governing time limit for claiming refund and processing it "so that consumers are not made to litigate for refund". (PTI)
