

Mask mandate may not be necessary for now, say experts

NEW DELHI, Apr 8: Setting at rest fears over Covid restrictions being relaxed, several experts say the two-year stringent mask mandate has led to fatigue and can be removed from public spaces for now just as many countries have done.

While the message around the benefits of masking should continue, it would be wise to lift the mandate and reintroduce it if there is another Covid wave for better compliance, experts said, pointing to the futility of ill-fitting masks and lack of community consensus on the matter.

"The issue is of compliance fatigue," Ramanan Laxminarayan, director of Washington's Center for Disease Dynamics, Economics & Policy, told PTI while noting that many countries around the world have removed mask restrictions. (PTI)
