Excelsior Correspondent

JAMMU, Feb 5: The J&K Advisory Board for Development of Kisans organized a Kisan Sammelan in coordination with Agriculture Production and Farmers Welfare Department at Kisan Bhawan, Talab Tiloo here.

Additional Chief Secretary (ACS), Agriculture Production Department and Vice Chairman, J&K Advisory Board for Development of Kisans, Atal Dulloo, inaugurated the seminar in presence of Vice Chancellor SKUAST-Jammu /SKUAST-Kashmir, Professor Nazir Ahmad Ganie.

While addressing the participants, Atal Dulloo said that through these Kisan Sammelans the department has succeeded in achieving a visible progress in agriculture field both qualitatively and quantitatively. He said mushroom cultivation shall now be around the year activity which previously was a short duration crop. He informed that under Holistic Agriculture Development Plan 26 pasteurized compost units, 10 spawn production laboratories and 72 compost units shall be established in J&K to boost production of mushroom.

Responding to simplification of official procedures and requirements for availing subsidies, he informed that work on establishing an online dashboard is under progress by the Agriculture Production Department. This dashboard shall be an online portal where all schemes under Holistic Agriculture Development Plan and other Heads shall be available in a farmer friendly manner. Regarding Skill development, ACS said that a learning management system is being created under this programme where the youths shall be trained how to establish their start-ups and this system shall be in addition to our offline training programmes.

VC SKUAST-Jammu/SKUAST-Kashmir, appreciated the efforts of Board for organizing such type of events which give an opportunity to our farmers to use this platform for getting their problems and day to day drudgeries heard and simultaneously addressed.

Deputy Director, National Horticulture Board, Sansar Ahmad, gave a Power Point Presentation on schemes available with NHB under Mushroom Development plan.

Board Member, Dr. Pardeep Bharti, informed that the Poultry sector and Mushroom cultivation are two interlinked professions that can be good models for integrating farming. The Poultry farmers needs to be motivated to adopt mushroom farming either during off seasons or simultaneously, he added.

Earlier, Secretary of the Board, Abdul Hamid Wani, apprised the participants about the importance of such programmes saying that these help in bridging the gap between farmers and the government.

Kulbushan Khajuria, Board Member, informed that the spawn which is the important component in Mushroom production is presently being imported from other neighboring states which add input costs in Mushroom and hence he requested for its production locally for which the interested youth needs to be trained here in Jammu.

Cong questions pick & choose in Lambardar, Chowkidar nominations

Excelsior Correspondent

JAMMU, Feb 5: Congress has taken strong exception to the pick & choose method in the nomination of Lambardars and chowkidars, undertaken in different districts on the instructions of the LG administration and described it as arbitrary and against settled norms.

Reacting to the removal and replacement of Lambardars and Chowkidars in a most clandestine and arbitrary manner having been finalised by the respective district administrations, JKPC has questioned the move of administration and the mode and manner.

JKPC Chief Spokesperson Mr Ravinder Sharma has said that it is totally arbitrary and pick and choose method, on the behalf of ruling BJP leaders whereas the procedure violates all norms and principle of fairness and natural justice.

The party asked the government to stop the arbitrary process and take the stake holders and villagers into confidence as per norms. In some cases ineligible persons have been approved on the recommendations of blue eyed persons.

the change in the policy will lead to drastic changes in the mindset of the society because earlier the education set up in India was colonial and inclined more towards western world.

"The amendments in NEP from the previous education policy strive for research, innovation, and quality," Sham Lal said, adding that the main objective of NEP is to achieve 100 percent youth and adult literacy and all the reforms made in the previous policy for education tend to achieve the aforesaid target.

He said that the Modi Government has envisaged the NEP to bring the people closer to the culture and vividness of the country, which was missing in the earlier educational policies which were imposed on India under mounting pressure of the people living in foreign lands especially the British.

Sham also emphasized the significance of instilling values in youngsters in order to help them develop into decent citizens. "I say everywhere that value education should be added to our curriculum, our system, our syllabus," he asserted.

He claimed that if value education is given from the start, it would aid in the emergence of a good society.
